

HAPPY GIRL MAY BE PICKFORD RIVAL

Marjorie Daw, of Los Angeles,
Only Fifteen, But Already
Has Leading Roles

Fifteen-year-old Marjorie Daw, of Los Angeles, is the richest and happiest girl in the world. At least, according to her own rating, and actually, if she keeps on fulfilling the hopes of the Lucky Picture Play Company, she will be rich according to the rating of everyone else in the world. Her happiness she would probably have anyhow, because she is Marjorie Daw. Some people even predict that she will be Mary Pickford's rival.

All because she is good and sweet and beautiful, and knows how to mind her own business, and actually, if she keeps on fulfilling the hopes of the Lucky Picture Play Company, she will be rich according to the rating of everyone else in the world. Her happiness she would probably have anyhow, because she is Marjorie Daw. Some people even predict that she will be Mary Pickford's rival.

Her First Reward.
But Marjorie Daw's story proves today that it is true, and just as good as ever. When she walked into the motion picture company's office one day at Hollywood, Cal., and asked to play little extra parts, with her mother holding her by the hand, she began to get results from her sweetness and beauty immediately.

The film people in the motion picture town in California didn't know right away that she was a good little girl, but it did not take long for them to find it out after they had given her a trial. She knew how to do it, and she knew how to do it just to the liking of some one else. She knew how to work without complaining, and to do what was given her to do without worrying about something that she might have wanted.

So her first reward was that she was retained with the company, and allowed to learn the first rudiments of motion picture work. But, of course, all of that was due to the fact that she was a good little girl.

Given Leading Roles.
Then came her second reward, due to the fact that she was pretty and sweet. She won the admiration and personal friendship of every person connected with the company, from the head director to the camera men and the lowest extras. She was simply irresistible, and when Geraldine Farrar, the great singer, who came to Hollywood to act in the film "Carmen," fell in love with her, no one was surprised in the least.

But Farrar didn't let her heart run away with her. She watched the young lady at work in the small assignments, and took careful stock of her ability. The result was that Marjorie Daw, motion picture actress, won the head of Miss Farrar, and it didn't take one afternoon to have leading roles take the place of the minor parts of a few hours before.

Har first important role was in "Out of Darkness," where she appears with Charlotte Walker. Next week she will be seen at Loew's Columbia Theater in her next and more important role, that of Nora, in "The Cherry Lady." And although that was her third reward, it will not be her last.

Good and Beautiful.
The only really fortunate incident connected with Miss Daw's career so far is the fact that she photographs almost perfectly. By fortunate, in this case, the element of luck enters most largely. Even in this case the element of luck is small, for the Lucky Company people are inclined to think that Marjorie photographs perfectly because she is really such a pretty child, and that she is pretty because she is good.

So when in a year or two or three or less, the fame of Marjorie Daw, the richest girl in the motion picture world, and the best actress, has traveled about into Timbuctoo and the Gullible Isles, don't forget that it all came about because she was good and sweet and beautiful! And that although we cannot all be beautiful, we can be good and sweet, and with those two attributes one should be able to be the second richest motion picture person at least!

Says Negro Held Him
Up and Robbed Him

Matthew Noonan, of 1234 Twenty-second street northwest, today told the police that he was the victim of an assault and robbery. He says that while he was on Twenty-fifth street, between I and M streets northwest, early last evening, he was held up by a young negro who robbed him of $5 and some change.

British Trade Methods Described in Booklet

Methods by which the British government fosters and directs expansion of its trade are described in a new booklet about to be issued by the Department of Commerce. The world-encompassing foreign commerce of the United States has become an important factor in international economics. It is stated, and it is believed industrial leaders of this country would benefit by a study of methods employed by Great Britain.

Woman Prosecuted for Giving Tea Coupons

Upon recommending that the court take the personal bond of Sarah Wolf, charged with conducting a lottery, Assistant District Attorney Ralph Given announced in Police Court yesterday that he would prosecute all dealers who sell food stuffs and other merchandise and accompany the purchases with coupons for prizes.

No Women Spies Shot During the Civil War

Some one raised the question in the War Department today as to whether or not women spies were shot during the civil war. A furious search through the civil war records in the adjutant general's office, the most complete records of that war extant, resulted, after two hours, in an emphatic—
